Self-Help Housing Builds Strong Rural Communities

If the President's FY13 budget is approved by Congress, Self-Help Housing appropriations will be cut to its lowest in more than 30 years, decimating the network of over 100 Self-Help organizations and deserting more than 50,000 families currently on their waiting lists.

What is it?

- ❖ Self-Help Housing is the only federal program that combines “sweat equity” homeownership opportunities with technical assistance and affordable loans for America’s rural families:
 - Self-Help Housing families work nights and weekends to provide 65 percent (or 1,000 hours) of the construction labor on their own and each other’s homes. In doing so, families earn an average $27,600 in equity, decrease construction costs, and make lasting investments in their community;
 - Section 523 grants help experienced non-profit developers provide training, supervision, and technical assistance to Self-Help Housing families; and
 - With a Section 502 Direct Loan, these families can access affordable mortgages with interest rates starting at just 1 percent.
- ❖ The Self-Help Housing program is exclusively targeted to very low- and low-income families who are otherwise unable to access decent, clean, and safe housing.
- ❖ Over half of the participants in Self-Help Housing are minority households, a population that typically faces greater barriers to affordable housing.

Proposed Funding Levels

Section 523 Mutual Self-Help Housing

FY12 Appropriations:	$30M
FY13 Budget Request:	$10M
FY13 Senate:	$30M
FY13 House:	$15M

Why is it important?

- ❖ Self-Help Housing expands affordable homeownership opportunities. With affordable mortgages and savings from “sweat equity,” some of rural America’s poorest families can become homeowners.
- ❖ Self-Help Housing promotes stronger civic commitments and community ties. Self-Help Housing children are also more likely to be active in their communities, graduate from high school, attend college, and become homeowners themselves.
- ❖ Demand for affordable, decent rural housing for very low- and low-income families continues to outpace supply. More than 50,000 families are currently on Self-Help Housing waiting lists.
- ❖ The Self-Help Housing program is cost-effective and creates jobs. Every 100 homes built under this program creates 324 jobs, $21.1 million in local income, and $2.2 million in tax revenue.
